

American Economic Association Summer Program

Funded summer research for undergraduates

The AEA Summer Program is a prestigious program that uniquely enables students to prepare for the rigors of graduate studies—particularly at the PhD level—through two months of intensive training in microeconomics, math, econometrics and research methods with leading faculty.

The AEA Summer Program aims to broaden participation and increase diversity in the economics profession to ensure that more traditionally under-represented views and backgrounds contribute to scholarship in the field.

More info: www.aeaweb.org/about-aea/committees/aeasp

Information Session

Thursday, November 14 | 6 – 8 pm in Mann 102

All majors welcome

Dinner provided

Facebook Live with Program Directors

Cornell PhD students will be available to assist with applications