Curious about careers in Economics? Come learn about all the industries you can enter with an economics degree.

If you're unsure what to do with your degree OR uncertain if you belong in the professional world of economics, come learn about your options from industry veterans!

DICE is hosting a panel of Cornell graduate students in economics-related fields for interested undergraduate and masters students.

Join the conversation to hear about their experiences in the following industries and get advice on what might be right for you:

- Tech •
- Consulting •
- Finance and banking •
- Think tanks and government organizations •
- Pre-doctorate programs •
- Field work, and more! •

DICE events are open to all students, however, women, people of color, LGBT+, and first-gen individuals are strongly encouraged to attend. DICE is invested in bringing better representation to the field of economics.

What is DICE?

Diversity in Cornell Economics ("DICE") is a student organization for undergraduate and graduate students working to promote equity and a sense of belonging for everyone studying and working in economics. DICE seeks to formalize efforts to promote diversity among the economics community at Cornell and beyond.
